1. What you are agreeing to

Intent helps AI sourcing and recruiting tools understand your career goals better. To do that, we need your permission to share your profile information with sourcing and recruiting firms ("Sourcing Partners"). This page explains exactly what that means so you can decide.

2. What we will share

If you turn data sharing on, we may share:

- Your name, email address, and LinkedIn profile link.
- Your career intent, job requirements, and hiring experience.
- Any other career details you add to your profile.
- Your work-sponsorship status (for example, whether you need sponsorship).
- Whether you have Verified status.

We do not share payment details, and we do not collect selfies or other biometric data.

3. Who we will share it with

We share it with Sourcing Partners, which are recruiting and sourcing firms, including firms that use AI tools to find and contact candidates. You cannot choose which Sourcing Partners receive your information. The list of Sourcing Partners may change over time.

4. Why we share it

So that Sourcing Partners can find you for roles that fit your goals and contact you about them. Sourcing Partners may only use your information for sourcing and recruiting, as required by our agreement with them.

5. Cost and sale of data

Intent does not sell your data. Sourcing Partners do not pay Intent for access to it, and you do not pay to be shared.

6. Your choice

- Sharing is your choice. If you do not turn it on, we will not share your data with Sourcing Partners.
- You can turn sharing off at any time in your account settings. It is as easy to turn off as to turn on.
- When you turn it off, we stop making your data available and ask every Sourcing Partner to delete it, as required by our agreement with them.
- Information a Sourcing Partner already holds, and contact they already made, cannot always be undone.

- Withdrawing consent does not affect sharing that happened before you withdrew.

7. How long it lasts

Your consent lasts until you turn sharing off or delete your account. If you delete your account, we delete your personal data within 30 days and ask Sourcing Partners to delete their copies.

8. More information

How we handle your data in general is explained in our Privacy Policy. If you have questions or complaints, contact preetam@unitalent.cloud, or our Grievance Officer, Preetam Patil, Chief Executive Officer, at the same address.
